B. Administrative Reports

i) Chancellor Schrader

Monday, October 15th, was spent taking an in-depth look at research and economic development. The progress that has been made over the past few years was reviewed as well as the opportunities for the future. In addition to Chancellor Schrader and Provost Wray, other attendees included President Wolfe, Vice President Mike Nichols, Ryan Rapp, Bob Schwartz, Vice Provost for Research, K. Krishnamurthy and Keith Strassner. They looked at what type of strategic investment might be able to help move us forward in terms of some goals for this campus but also for the University of Missouri System. Those goals are to expand the research and economic development activities. That afternoon was a productive time spent with a group of faculty.

Homecoming was a great success. Thanks to all who participated.

We had a visit from AACSB looking at the final phase of three in terms of achieving accreditation for Business & Information Technology programs. It has been a seven year effort. We won’t know the results for a few months.

A group of 16, from Missouri S&T will be attending a two day Strategic Planning Process workshop in St. Louis during the week of October 22nd. Included in the 16 are five faculty and five department chairs. There will be delegations from the other campuses, from the Hospital, and from the System. They will be launching into the campus-specific planning that will occur from November until February. The overall guiding coalition that is going to help us implement and lead the strategic planning process here will include those that participated in the June meeting (Chancellor Schrader, Provost Wray, Jim Drallmeier, Larry Gragg who was a department chair at that time), this meeting in October, and our campus Strategic Planning Steering Committee. There will be about 40 people involved and about half of those will be faculty and department chairs. More details are available on the slides from the State of the University Address. Information regarding our campus format and plan for November into February will be updated on the Chancellor’s website following the workshop.
